Annie (bottom right) 7th grader - "I participated in the Life-A-Thon because I wanted to support a cause that I feel is important. It was pretty fun to do it with my friends and my teacher, knowing that we were all walking towards the same goal."

A study by the University of Texas found that youth as young as 12 are engaging in sexually risky behavior.

Giving students practical and person connections to content is super important to learning and growth. We want those connections to be positive. People like you and your students can help change negative trends and build a support system for young men and women in our community.
